ELECTION RETURNS

The Battle of the Ballots Proves a Democratic Victory

GARRITY THE OVERSEER

The Democrats Succeeded in Electing Councilmen From Each of the Three Wards

COMPLETE RETURNS FROM DISTRICTS

The election returns for Bellefonte were surprising to some and especially to the Republicans as they lost some of the offices on which they had counted. A great deal of interest was centered upon the election of overseer of the poor and neither side would concede the other's success. However when the votes were counted it showed a total of 416 votes for P. H. Garrity, the Democratic candidate, against 312 votes for James Rine, the Republican candidate, giving Garrity a majority of 104.

W. B. Rankin, the Republican candidate for borough treasurer, having no opposition, received the full Republican vote and many from the Democratic side.

The Democrats are rejoicing over the election of councilmen and well they can as they have succeeded in electing their candidates from each of the three wards. M. A. Kirk of the West ward, Fred Musser of the South ward and J C. Harper of the North ward will be members of the next council. This will leave the Republicans only two members in the council.

For the offices of school director M. R. Johnson, Republican of the North ward was elected, and two Democrats, Ross Parker of the West ward and D. F. Fortney of the South ward, will be on the next board of directors.

M. A. Jackson, Republican candidate for auditor having no opposition easily succeeded in being elected to the auditorship.

There has been much comment on the results of the election and it was a very interesting topic for conversation to-[illegible]. We give below the returns showing the full vote from the various precincts.

TWENTY-EIGHT [illegible] IMPRISONED

Caused by Rush of Water Into Gangway Where Men Worked

RESCUERS AT WORK

All Day Long They Directed Energies to Reach the Imprisoned Miners.

THE PRISONERS ARE HEARD FROM

Pottsville, Pa., February 18.—Twenty-eight miners were imprisoned in the Midvale colliery, near Mount Carmel, Monday morning by the breaking of a dam of water which had formed in a drift which caused a rush of mud into a gangway where the men were at work. All day long a party of rescuers endeavored to reach the entombed men and shortly after 6 o'clock Monday night they were given encouragement by sounds of digging from the inside. Later a shot was also heard indicating that the men were at work to effect their own rescue and also giving assurance that the air is good.

Among the men entombed are a number of experienced miners and it is believed that it will be possible to effect the rescue of all the men unless some of them should have met death by being smothered in the rush of mud when the dam broke through the gangway. Seven of the number are Americans.

The men had been employed in No. 4 drift of the east side gangway driving a heading to the surface. The heavy rains and thaw of the last few days had caused a great dam of water to accumulate in No. 20 breast of No. 14 drift and the pressure became so heavy that it finally broke through and a great sea of mud flowed into the gangway where the men were at work. It filled it for a distance of about 350 feet and it will be necessary to dig through this great barrier of mud to get at the workmen from this direction. Three different rescuing parties have been put to work in an endeavor to rescue the entombed men. One force is digging away the great bank of mud, which fills the gangway, another gang is engaged in driving a heading from an adjoining gangway, while a third force has been put to work at the point where the entombed men were to have driven the heading to the surface from the gangway in which they are now imprisoned. It is believed that the last named gang will be the first to reach the entombed men and it is hoped to be able to get them out or give them food and drink by Tuesday morning.

The noise of men working with picks inside gave the rescuers great encouragement and it is believed that the majority of the men entombed are alive, although it is scarcely possible that all of them were fortunate enough to have escaped the great rush of mud when the dam broke. With some of the best miners employed by the company among the imprisoned workmen the officials have little fear of the ability of the men to take care of themselves and to work wisely to assist in their own rescue.

LATER—By special telegram received this afternoon from Mt. Carmel Pa. All but one of 28 miners imprisoned by breaking dam at Midvale colliery rescued alive after a night of furious digging.

Fire at Baum's Residence.

Just a few minutes after the blowing of the curfew alarm Tuesday evening the sonorous voice of the whistle sounded for fire in the South ward. The fire was discovered to be at the home of Abe Baum on Bishop street. While they were gathered about the family circle they heard a roaring as if something was burning rapidly and were startled to discover that it was a couch in the room in which they were sitting. The burning couch was quickly carried from the room and thrown into the street where it was entirely consumed. The origin of the fired seems to be somewhat mysterious but it is supposed by the family that a match got in the couch in some manner and becoming ignited set fire to it. The wood work and carpet where the couch was sitting were slightly damaged by the flames of the burning couch.

The fire companies were quick to respond to the alarm but their services were not needed as the removal of the couch from the house practically ended the fire.

SEMI-MONTHLY COUNCIL.

Citizens Petition for a Change in the Curfew Alarm.

The regular semi-monthly session of the borough council was held on Monday evening at 7 30 o'clock with President Keller in the chair and the following members present: Kirk, Shuey, Wagner, Beezer, Judge, Hamilton, Derstine.

After the reading of the minutes the call was made for communications and a petition with a large number of signers on was presented asking that the blowing of the whistle every night at 7 45 be abolished. The petitioners stated that they were not opposed to the Curfew ordinance but believed that the ringing of the Court House bell or the bell on the fire house would answer the purpose just as well. The blowing of the whistle is a nuisance to the people living in the vicinity of the Electric Light house.

James C. Furst, Esq., spoke of the above petition, setting forth the reasons for said petition.

An order was drawn in favor of the Treasurer for $2,000 to be placed in the sinking fund.

The Water street wall which was washed out by the recent flood is to be protected at once so as not to be washed out any further and soon as weather permits will be repaired by a permanent wall. A temporary board walk will be laid over the washed out place.

In order to give employment to the many unemployed now in Bellefonte, it was decided to set the men to work breaking stone for our streets. This is a good idea on the part of council and will help a good many worthy men to tide over the present dull times.

The petition asking or the abolishing of the fire whistle as a curfew was referred to the Fire and Police committee to investigate and a more suitable alarm for sounding the curfew.

The following bills were approved and orders drawn:

Street Pay Roll	$60.60
Police Pay Roll	$52.50
Pa. Railroad Co.	$5.00
J. D. Seibert	$1.50
J. T. Mitchell, salary	$25.00
Water Works Pay Roll	$54 50
H. E. Fenlon, ins,	$25.00
	$224.00

Council then then adjourned to meet Monday morning March 2nd at 10 a. m. when the old council winds up its business and the new council will be sworn in.

Ambrose Ray Secures Patent.

That there is some inventive genius in Bellefonte has been demonstrated by Ambrose Ray, brother of S. D. Ray. Mr. Ray has been granted a patent on a collapsible shipping crate, which can be used for fruit and berries or for poultry. It is so constructed that by pressing a thumb set on each corner the attachments that hold it in place are released and the two ends are folded in. The two sides then fold over this and the result is a very small bulk. The collapsible crate is something that has already received favorable comment from shippers and from expressmen, as it is considered a great space saving invention.

The people of Bellefonte are glad to hear of Mr. Ray's success as he has been greatly handicapped in life, being almost deaf and of very defective sight. He has already received a communication from a Philadelphia firm asking him not to dispose of his patent until they have investigated it. It is very probable that he will receive a substantial offer for it on account of the great demand for such an article. Let us hope that he may reap a sufficient sum from the sale of his invention to fix him comfortably for life either in the way of a cash sale or on a royalty.

Cat Mothers Ratlets.

In defiance of all natural instinct a house cat on the farm of Joseph McDonald, in Lower Windsor township, York county, has for the past week been mothering a family of six young rats.

One day last week the farmer opened a bin in his barn and a big rat scampered out. In a corner it left six tiny young ones, and as the quickest means of extermination McDonald tossed his house cat into them. He was astonished to see the animal at once curl her body in a protecting manner about the shivering little creatures.

Many of the neighbors came to witness the unusual sight until the cat, for the safety of the litter, carried them one by one in her mouth to a more secluded part of the barn, and Farmer McDonald secured a club and killed the rodents.

C. W. MORSE ARRESTDED

Officers Nab Ex-Ice King Before Steamship was Tied up.

IS HELD IN CUSTODY.

Denies Any Criminal Intent and Asks Public to Suspend Judgement.

COMES BACK FULL OF FIGHT.

New York, February 17th.— Charles W. Morse, financier and promoter of many large combinations, including the so-called "ice trust" and a merger of nearly all of the coastwise steamship lines, returned Sunday from his brief trip to Europe, was arrested in his state room when the steamer Etruria reached quarantine in the lower bay, held in custody until the ship was docked, and then was whirled away in an automobile to the home of Justice Victor Dowling, of the supreme court, where he gave bond in the sum of $20,000 to answer to two indictments charging grand larceny and involving the sum of $100,000. Mr. Morse was released and went immediately to his Fifth avenue home, where he gave out a statement asserting his innocence and asking the public to suspend judgment until he has had the opportunity of facing his accusers in court.

Today Mr. Morse will appear before Justice Dowling in open court and plead not guilty to the indictments. He denied that his trip to Europe was a "flight." He said he had gone abroad to sell stock in a large interest and to secure a fortnight's rest. Both purposes were spoiled by the publication of reports that he was a fugitive from justice, he declared.

Mr. Morse had received word by wireless telegraphy that two indictments had been found against him, but he did not know he was to suffer physical arrest. The appearance of three detectives from District Attorney Jerome's office at his state room door took him completely by surprise. The officers armed with a warrant had gone down the bay on a revenue cutter. They were accompanied by Albert B. Boardman and Philip J. Britt, attorneys and by Benjamin W. Morse, a son of the financier. Mrs. Morse met her husband at the pier and it was in her automobile that the journey with one of the detectives was made to Justice Dowling's house.

Justice Dowling held an informal court session in his library, Assistant District Attorney Kreesel representing the prosecution. The bonds, which were signed by a surety company, had been prepared Sunday. Mr. Morse was required to sign two obligations of $10,000 each, and, along with the representatives of the bonding company, was put under oath to appear at any time his presence may be required.

Important Business Change to Take Place April 1.

On account of the large increase in the already enormous post card business of Mr. Geo. T. Bush and the need for more space to display the cards required the removal of the office of the American Express Co which has been there for fifteen years. Owing to the small patronage of the company by the merchants and their desire to bring the expense in regular limits, the office will be moved to the Central R. R. of Penna. station and located in the former ladies waiting room. Mr. W. H. Miller will still be agent but will also make the run on the road now made by Mr. Walter Armstrong the present messenger. The change takes place April 1. Mr. Bush will put in a set of 6 large folding racks which will hold over 30,000 cards and display 3500 different cards in the space now occupied by the express office and will help him to display more of his enormous stock, two-thirds of it has never been seen by the Bellefonte public.

Kissed Son; Killed Herself.

Corry, Pa., Feb. 14.—Calling her little son to her Mrs. George Myers, 40 years, said: "Kiss me before I shoot myself." She then fired a bullet into her heart. The woman was happily married and lived on a farm near Tubb's Corner, Erie county, with her husband and two children. The cause of the rash act is unknown.

DEATH OF JOHN KAUP.

Bellefonte Young Man Succumbs to Typhoid Fever After a few Days Illness

The community was shocked at noon Thursday when word was received from the Bellefonte hospital that John Kaup was dead. He had steadily followed his work till last Wednesday when he asked to lay off on account of not feeling well. On Sunday he consulted a doctor as to his illness, and was advised that he was threatened with typhoid fever. The same day he was admitted to the Bellefonte hospital and not till Monday was his sickness fully diagnosed as typhoid fever.

His condition gradually grew worse and about 11:30 o'clock Thursday forenoon death called him hence.

John Kaup was a son of George Kaup and was born at Axe Mann on December 29th, 1876, making him a little over 31 years of age at the time of his demise. Several years after the birth of John his father moved to Bellefonte and since that time he had been a residence of this place.

By occupation he was a machinist and was employed at the Lingle Machine shops for about seven years. At the time of his taking sick he was employed at the Seibert Machine shop. He was a consistant member of St John's Reformed church. By his kind disposition he had endeared himself to many of the young people of Bellefonte and the death of one so young and ambitious is deeply regretted by all who knew him.

Surviving him are two sisters, Sara J., wife of Edward Owens, of Bellefonte, and Virgie A., who made her home with them.

Services were held at the Owen's home on Monday afternoon at one o'clock and the funeral cortege was carried on the 2.40 train over the Central Railroad of Penna. Interment was made in the Mt. Bethel cemetery near Clintondale. The services were conducted by the young man's pastor Rev. Ambrose Schmidt.

Death of Michael Poorman.

On Friday at 1 o'clock, death called Mr. Michael Poorman from this life of misery into the life beyond. For a number of years Mr. Poorman has suffered from the dreaded disease cancer. About three weeks ago he was taken very ill, gradually growing weaker, until at last death relieved him of his suffering. Deceased has resided in Coleville for a long time and will be greatly missed by the people of that vicinity. Mr. Poorman was a devoute christian, dying triumphant in the faith of the God whom he loved and served. Forced to Steal or Starve.

In a hand-to-hand struggle with two men whom he suspected of having committed burglaries, one at Lawrenceville and the other at Nelson, Tioga county, Constable Jerry Quill, of Lawrenceville, succeeded in overpowering both men and placing them under arrest. They were taken to Wellsboro to await trial at court. They had in their possession a number of articles taken from the store of W. E. Davis, at Nelson, which they entered Thursday night and also about $7 in cash taken from the New York Central station at Lawrenceville. The accused men are Daniel Ayres and James McFillo, both well known residents of Corning, N. Y. Ayres says that he was forced to commit the crim to obtain something with which to feed his starving family.

New Record for Pennsy.

Notwithstanding the numerous reports in circulation regarding decreased business a new record has been made on the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad in handling freight trains. Reports made to headquarters show that between noon and six o'clock Saturday 40 freight trains moved over the Pittsburg division to Altoona where they were turned over to the Middle division. The highest previous record for trains brought eastward in six hours was 37. Indications are that railroad traffic is on the increase and the large wholesale houses report spring orders coming in heavier than expected

ORCHESTRA DISABLED

Two Trainmen Killed and Six Musicians Injured Near Chester

FEW ESCAPE UNHURT

Engineer Ignored Danger Signal and two Trains Collide in Dense Fog.

LEADER WAS NOT INJURED

Chester, Pa., Feb. 14.—In a collision late Friday night on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad at Felton, near here, between a special train bearing members of the Philadelphia Orchestra and a freight train, the firemen of the special was killed and the engineer so badly injured that he died soon after. Fifteen members of the orchestra were cut and bruised.

The orchestra was returning from Wilmington, Del., where a concert was given Friday night. The accident was partly due to a heavy fog. The freight train was using the passenger track and had stopped at Felton. A trainman was sent back to flag the special, but he was too late. The passenger train came along at great speed, ran past the flagman and crashed into the rear of the freight.

The impact of the collision was so great that the locomotive of the special was hurled over an embankment and eight or more freight cars strewn across both the northbound and southbound tracks in front of Felton station.

The fireman in attempting to escape became entangled in the still revolving wheels of the engine and was literally cut to pieces. The engineer was crushed beneath the locomotive and died soon after.

Carl Poblig, conductor of the orchestra was not injured in any way. He broke down completely under the strain. His first thought was for his musicians and their instruments.

The wreck of the train was shown by investigation to have been due to the action of Silas Williamson, the dead engineer, in running past danger signals displayed to warn him that the freight train into which he crashed was shifting on the tracks ahead.

In the half mile dash immediately before the special train plowed into the rear of the shifting freight cars, it passed three danger signals. The first—a green light—cautioning "go slowly," then a red light, calling for an immediate full stop, then another red light, the final signal of peril to a railroad man—the signal of an open switch.

A dense fog hung over the tracks. The last words of the mangled engineer as he was dying in the Chester Hospital were, "They gave me a white light."

Leonie's Favor

By INA WRIGHT HANSON.

Copyrighted, 1908, by M. M. Cunningham.

Against a great rock we sat, Leonie and I, and Leonie was reading aloud. Yesterday we had sat there, and the day before and many days before that, reading or talking or looking silently at the sea foam piling up against other rocks out in the blue distance, and every day I had loved Leonie more.

On this day I had thought to tell her so, but now that the day had come my words were held. Before me stood duty, grim visaged and cruel eyed. Beside me sat Leonie, slim, radiant, entrancing.

"Fair lord, whose name I know not—noble it is;
I well believe the noblest—will you wear
My favor at this tourney?" "Nay," said he,
"Fair lady, since I never yet have worn
Favor of any lady in the lists."

Leonie looked up at me, her brown eyes full of the glory of the master poet.

"Shouldn't you like to have lived in those days?" she asked. "Think of receiving your lady's favor and kissing her hand and riding away and riding home again! Ah, but my part—waiting at home while my knight was in danger! That I shouldn't like."

"I SHOULD STAY AT HOME AND PRAY AND WAIT."

"Maybe when he was about to ride away you would have called him back," I ventured. "Maybe you would have said: 'I need you to take care of me. Let others do the fighting.' Would you, Leonie?"

"One can never tell what one will do till the time comes," she answered, and would have turned to her book again, but my hand stayed her.

"Let me tell you a story, Leonie. Once there was an orphan boy who was adopted by a man and brought up as his own son. The boy had been left money, but the man gave to him other things—love and sympathy, encouragement and trust. When the boy had grown to a man the foster father sent him out into the world to accomplish his heart's desire. Did I say that the boy's ambition was to write?"

"I understand, Arthur," she smiled.

"When the boy was going away he tried to tell the man what he felt of gratitude to him, but the man laid his kind old hand on the boy's shoulder and said, 'Never mind that now, but some time when I make a request of you you will grant it.' And of course the boy thought then, and said so, that any request would be small in comparison with what the man had done for him.

"In a few years the young man had become reasonably successful. In the many times he saw his foster father the request was not mentioned, but the boy had not forgotten. Then one day he met you, and you know what that meant to him. You must know, Leonie."

"I think I understand, Arthur," she whispered, coloring.

"Last night the letter came. My foster father has made known his request."

It was difficult to go on, looking into Leonie's eyes, so full of trust and happiness, and—yes, I could see—so full of love.

"The request is a year out of my life to be spent with him—a year free of all entanglements, as he expresses it, in the matter of love affairs. It means neither to see nor hear from the woman I love. It means that if I grant the favor I may not even tell the woman I love her and ask her to wait till the year is done. Why couldn't he have asked any other thing under the sun? It must be a mere whim." I finished hotly.

Leonie was silent for a time. Her eyes turned away from me, gazing out on the feathery spray in the blue distance.

"We may all be dead in a year," I exclaimed wrathfully.

Then Leonie sighed and turned her face to me and laid her slim hand on my sleeve.

"The future is not ours," she answered gravely. "Only today. It may be a whim, but I think he has a reason, and you promised to grant his request when he should ask it. I know now what I should do if these were the days of knighthood."

"What, Leonie?" I asked sadly, for now I knew that I must go.

"I should give my knight his favor and send him away, and I should stay at home and pray and wait."

"Oh, Leonie!" I whispered. "Leonie!"

She took from the lace at her white throat a tiny blue and gold swastika and pinned it on my coat.

"This is instead of the 'red sleeve broidered with pearls,'" she smiled, though her eyes were wet. "And you shall wear it on your coat instead of your helmet. Do you know what it signifies, brave knight?"

"It brings good luck and is a talisman to ward off the evil eye," I answered, smiling, too, for had she not called me brave?

"That and more. The colors are loyalty and royalty. The up and down points are heaven and earth, the right and left behind you and before you—time and eternity. The symbol means that you are not free from personal responsibility while you wear it. It means noblesse oblige, dear knight. Ride forth to your promise; be brave and strong, and victory will be yours."

So I kissed my lady's favor and then her hand and rode away.

Aside from my desire for Leonie or news concerning her, my year with my foster father was a pleasant one. His library was full of books, his mind a storehouse of ideas concerning travel, history and romance. He gave me my mornings for writing, and I wrote much, glad that out in the world Leonie was reading and waiting.

The request he had asked might have been a whim, but he gave, leaving Leonie out of the question, much more than he could have received. The year was nearing its close when he spoke to me of my future.

"You have no idea of what these months have been to me, Arthur," he said as we were walking one evening by the lake in his meadow.

"And they have been much to me, sir," I answered truthfully.

"What would it mean to you to have them last?" he asked, hitting some goldenrod sprays with his cane, his eyes on the yellow blossoms.

"It couldn't be quite like this, sir," I answered slowly, and then I told him about Leonie and the swastika.

"It wasn't a whim, boy, that has kept you here," he replied, with a smile on his fine old face. "You had begun writing to me of this Leonie, and it happened that I had seen the girl, though she had not known my name. I wanted to test her, boy. You have a future before you which must not be spoiled by the wrong woman. Tomorrow go back to her and if she will come bring her to me. The old house needs you both."

I had thought to find my lady where I had left her, but she was standing under some poplar trees near her own gate. As I came in sight of her a vagrant breeze touched the trees, and a shower of yellow leaves fell around her like golden butterflies. I urged my horse forward and sprang from my saddle.

I had thought to greet her in words of the master poet, in language befitting her true knight come safely home, but all my stammering tongue could utter as her glad, welcoming face was raised to mine was: "Leonie! Oh, Leonie!"

A Historic Settlement.

The first purely American settlement west of the Mississippi river was Cape Girardeau, Mo. Its first settler, however, was Ensign Girardot, a French trader and for some time an officer in the French army, who located on the rocky mountain promontory just north of the present town. From Girardot the county was named. The first permanent settler at Cape Girardeau was Louis Lorimier, a French-Canadian, who in 1782 came from the Miami valley, west of the Mississippi. His wife was a half breed Shawnee woman, and through her great influence with the Shawnees he was given a large grant of land in 1795 by the governor of the territory. Shortly thereafter the Spanish government, deeming it wise to populate upper Louisiana, offered free lands exempted from taxation to settlers. Because these settlers came from Kentucky, Virginia and North Carolina almost entirely Cape Girardeau claimed the honor of being the first American settlement. Previous settlements had been largely Spanish or French. Lorimier was counted as the father of the town, which dates in organization from 1806. He died in 1812, having survived his Indian wife four years. He was buried by her side in Cape Girardeau on a tree crowned hill overlooking the western Mississippi.—Kansas City Star.

A Decoration From Victoria.

The queen, with one of the princesses and a lady in waiting, received me in a small room. She stood with her back to the window, wearing a long white veil which against the light made an aureole around her. Addressing a few kind words to me, to which in my embarrassment I made some inaudible answer, she proceeded to pin the order (the Order of the Crown of India) on my left shoulder. I remember that my black velvet dress was thickly embroidered with jet, so much so that the pin could find no hold, and unwittingly the queen stuck it straight into me. Although, like the Spartan boy, I tried to hide what I felt, I suppose I gave a start, and the queen, realizing what she had done, was much concerned. Eventually the pin was put right, and I courtesied myself out of the royal presence. As I reached the door her majesty suddenly stepped forward, saying, with a smile, "Oh, you have forgotten the case," holding it out to me at the same time. This little touch of nature relieved an otherwise somewhat formal ceremony. Running forward to the lady in waiting that I was afraid I had [illegible]

N. G. P. Notes.

The annual encampment of the National Guard of Pennsylvania next summer will probably be held at Gettysburg. The major general, governor, adjutant general and three brigadier generals will meet shortly and decide the matter, and it is said that Gettysburg will be selected. The delay of the state authorities in providing for an extension of the state rifle range property at Mt. Gretna is probably partly responsible for the encampment being held at Gettysburg.

It can be said with authority, however, that the plan to make the Pennsylvania range adaptable for interstate competition has by no means been given up, and that there is every prospect of the state making purchases of additional land necessary for the placing of additional ranges and buildings to accommodate shooters at interstate matches.

Members of the Fifth regiment are much interested in the reconstruction work of some of the regiments which will take place shortly. The reduction of the Third brigade from five to four regiments, will shortly go into effect. This will not affect the Ninth and Thirteenth regiments, for they have their full complement of 12 companies each but the Eighth and Fourth regiments are to be increased in the number of their companies from nine to twelve. These additional companies will come from the disbanding of one of the regiments yet to be determined upon.

The Knock-out Blow.

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but the stomach we are utterly indifferent to, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out. Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures "weak stomach," indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol, pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

Confidence Returning.

Scarcely a day of the last several weeks has passed without adding materially to the evidence that the financial ripple which marked the close of last year, and which was magnified in some quarters the hope that it might appear [illegible] actual panic, is in very truth a [illegible] the past; and that the industrial [illegible] of the country, so far from being [illegible] pressed as certain classes of comm[illegible] tors would have the public suppose[illegible] thoroughly optimistic and full of confidence.

Leading business houses of New York are overrun with buyers from the west and south, and the quantity of goods being purchased daily is likely to force at an early date full operations at all the plants where articles of various kinds are manufactured. It is estimated that there are 6000 buyers in New York and they have more ready money than in other years.

Coming swiftly on the heels of a period during which cash was scarce and confidence way below par, the new impetus given to trade has caught manufacturers short of goods. Hurry orders for a quick replenishment of stock have gone out and it is predicted that thousands of men and women who were forced into idleness several months ago when there was a general lay off of help will soon be working full hours at the old wages.

Business is so prosperous in the west that buyers have found it necessary to go to New York sooner than usual to stock up for the spring trade. It is generally agreed among buyers all over the country that in less than a month the financial flurry will have been entirely forgotten. The placing of the 55,000 ton order for steel rails by the Pennsylvania railroad company is evidence that that company is confident of returning prosperity.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers
The famous little pills.

Trying Economy Scheme.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is just now trying an experiment which, if successful, will result in laying off one out of every three crews on freights. The experiment was begun at South Fork ten days ago, and having worked very nicely there, was put in force at Conemaugh Thursday. The move in the line of economy of operation, coming on top of the fatal C. & C. wreck, due to telephone ordering of trains seems to show that the great corporation feels the necessity for saving wherever possible. The change in the handling of freights consists in making up trains of a size requiring three locomotives instead of two, as was formerly the rule over the mountain from Conemaugh.

Two trains will thus represent six locomotives in use, while formerly it took three trains to call for the services of six locomotives.

Ferguson's Mascot.

By HARRIET LUMMIS SMITH.

Copyrighted, 1908, by C. H. Sutcliffe.

From the first Ferguson had disliked the pug. The sight of the fat, wheezy little animal following at the heels of his pretty next door neighbor awoke in him an unreasonable desire to prod that pampered pet with his walking stick. All of which goes to show that first impressions are not to be trusted.

Ferguson's interest in the girl next door was fast approaching the critical stage. Perhaps the natural attraction which beauty holds for youth was heightened by the fact that the girl seemed unaware of his existence. Ferguson almost resented the blankness of her gaze, the indifferent tilt of her chin. He had a feeling that if she should look once she might find it worth her while to look again.

The pug took a hand in the game one delicious spring day when Ferguson, who was supposed to be studying law in his room, was in reality watching the pink of the peach blossoms against the blue of the sky and feeling in his heart a vague, exquisite response to the charm of the season.

At once the current of his thoughts was changed by an asthmatic barking in his neighbor's back yard. A black kitten shot across the grass to the shelter of the peach tree. The pug waddled after and stood guard below, coughing violently as a result of his unusual exertions. Then Ferguson's pulses thrilled at the sound of a girlish voice raised in reproachful summons, "Punch, you wretch, come here this instant!"

The law books had no chance after that. Even the peach blossoms became only the setting of the picture. The black kitten in the branches howled agonizingly. The pretty girl below called her in dulcet tones which would have tempted Ferguson to dare any danger. She brought out a saucer of milk, but even this lure proved unavailing. Then suddenly Ferguson started so violently that the book on his knee fell with a thud to the floor.

"By Jove," exclaimed the young man, "she's going to climb the tree!"

With an instant realization that this was his opportunity, Ferguson went down the stairs in a headlong manner, which gave his landlady the impression that the house was on fire. Explanations delayed him unwarrantably, and when he burst out of the door the kitten was in Miss Morrell's arms, and Miss Morrell was in the peach tree.

Ferguson hesitated, then advanced, halting at a respectful distance. "Might I be of assistance?" he asked.

"I—I think you might," said the girl doubtfully. "You see, it's so much easier getting up than getting down. If only you would take the kitten, I think I could manage."

Ferguson climbed up beside her and attempted to relieve her of her charge, but the black kitten had its own opinion regarding the transfer. It struggled. It spit. It elevated the hairs along its spine. It clawed Ferguson's wrist as if it suspected him of being an emissary of the pug dog.

"Oh, dear, now she has scratched you!" exclaimed the girl. If she had been pretty before she was entrancing now, looking at him through the peach blossoms.

"I'm sure I can get down now," said the girl, and Ferguson set the kitten on the grass and politely looked in another direction. A long minute passed. Then there was a shriek, and Ferguson turned to see the lady of his dreams clutching an overhanging bough and dangling some distance above the ground.

The young man rushed to her assistance. For a heavenly instant he had her in his arms, and then he set her on her feet. Her face was as pink as the peach blossoms, and her shy eyes found difficulty in meeting his, but there was no lack of gratitude in her tone as she said, "I don't know how to thank you!"

Ferguson went home with the feeling that he was walking on air. As he passed the window he saw the pug looking out, but his expression no longer seemed sardonic, but rather benevolent.

"I owe you a silver collar for this, old boy," Ferguson thought gratefully, for Miss Morrell had given him permission to call.

It was some time before it was necessary for the pug to interfere again. Without his good offices the acquaintance progressed rapidly. Miss Morrell's callers were very likely to find a dark, well dressed man sitting on the hammock beside her or occupying one of the rustic chairs on the porch or smoking in the library with the air of one who feels at home. Most of them took the hint. There was one exception, however, an obtrusive young fellow, Randall by name, who continued his visits, though Ferguson did his best to make it clear that they could be quite content without him.

Unfortunately Miss Morrell did not second these efforts as she might have done. She continued to treat her persistent caller with a consideration which Ferguson thought distinctly unnecessary. When he came one night prepared to take her driving and found she had gone boating with Randall he gave a harsher name to the act. He did not sleep that night, and when he presented himself next evening he was in the worst of humors.

Had Miss Morrell been conciliatory all might have been well, but instead she wore an air of studied indifference, and when she did not resent his reproaches she laughed at him. Accordingly in fifteen minutes the interview terminated abruptly.

"In that case," said Ferguson, rising to his feet, "the best thing for me to do is to take my hat and go home."

And Miss Morrell replied, "I quite agree with you."

Only one thing interfered with carrying out this programme immediately—Ferguson could not find his hat. "Good evening," said Miss Morrell in the background as if weary of waiting for him to take the initiative.

"I beg you not to imagine that I am delaying intentionally!" exclaimed Ferguson, with indignation. "But even you can see that it is impossible for me to leave the house bareheaded."

"You put your hat on the chair. I saw you," said Miss Morrell.

"I am quite aware that I put it there," returned Ferguson stiffly, "but it is easy to see that it is not there now."

For some minutes he hunted. Miss Morrell laid aside her offended dignity sufficiently to assist in the search. All at once she started nervously.

"I do hope Punch didn't find it!" she exclaimed. "He's so mischievous sometimes."

But when the hat was discovered it was in Punch's society. Moreover, it had lost its resemblance to a hat. The brim was missing, and the crown was fast disappearing. Punch surveyed them over the wreck and grinned complacently.

The two young people looked at each other, and Miss Morrell's lips twitched. Ferguson thought she was on the point of laughter, and he smiled encouragingly. Then she surprised him by turning her face to the wall and bursting into tears.

"My darling girl," exclaimed Ferguson, almost beside himself. "My dearest Ina, I beg you won't give a thought to the worthless thing."

"But you were going away angry," said a stifled voice.

"Angry with you?" cried Ferguson. "Never!" He took her in his arms again as he had done under the peach tree, but he did not let her go as quickly. And that wise old pug left the ruined hat on the rug and waddled away to the window seat, as if satisfied that they were once more capable of managing their own affairs.

Punch is older now and divides his mistress' devotion with a small pink and white rival said to resemble Ferguson, but he wears a silver collar, and no one grudges him his place as an honored member of the household. Whatever Ferguson's faults, he is not ungrateful.

Why He Was Happy.

He was a baldheaded bachelor, whose heart for the first time had been moved by the tender passion.

"Then you confess," he said in a trembling voice to the object of his regards, "that you like me a little—that you admire certain qualities of my head?"

"Yes," shyly responded the young lady.

"And may I ask," he continued in a tone of emotion, "what those qualities are?"

"I can hardly explain," said the young lady bashfully, "but I think it is because your head is so mellifluent. I can't express it more clearly."

"And you can never know how I appreciate your high opinion," exclaimed the happy bachelor as he pressed her hand. He didn't know just what "mellifluent" meant, but he was sure it was the synonym for something grand and ennobling, and when he bade her good night he rushed eagerly home, excitedly took down the dictionary and turned feverishly to the endeared word. His blood changed to ice as he read, "Smooth, soft, mellow."

Diamond Salesman's Secrets.

"There is no line in which more care must be exercised than in selling diamonds," remarked one of the oldest dealers in Cleveland. "For instance, we don't dare show a man a larger stone than he can afford to buy. Even a diamond a carat or a carat and a half in size looks like a mighty small affair to pay so much money for, and if a man comes in expecting to pay $75 for a diamond he may get disgusted and not buy at all if the salesman shows him something a little larger for $200. The salesman, if he knows his business, will find to a certainty just how much a customer is willing to pay before he shows him anything. Then it's better not to show a colored stone, such as a ruby or an emerald or a bluish diamond in connection with other diamonds. If you show some customers a colored stone and then put it away and show him a good white diamond, he will declare that the diamond is off color. It does not seem to be a whim so much as the effect on the eyes of the colors in the stones."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Doubtful Guarantee.

The Arabs and, indeed, all Moslems have the practice of re-enforcing promises by adding to their word of honor the Arabic phrase Inshallah ("Please God"). How much meaning it conveys in some lands of the east is told in the pages of "In Moorish Captivity."

The pious proviso is a very useful formula to the Moors and is frequently used in making promises that they have no intention whatever of keeping, as they can then take refuge behind the Almighty when they are taxed with their breach of faith.

There is a story told of a man who kept a shop in Gibraltar and who knew the ways of the Moor. To him one day came one of the faithful, who was desirous of buying some cloth. On being informed that the price was $2 a yard, payment in sixty days, he replied:

"All right. I will take so much and will pay you in sixty days, Inshallah."

"No," said the vender, "the price is $2, payment in sixty days. For sixty days, Inshallah, the price is $2.50."

Her Hidden Ambition.

There is an instance, rare in the profession, of a musician who had little enthusiasm for her calling, just as Fanny Kemble, the actress, was by no means enamored of the stage and would have quit it had not circumstances bound her there. A brilliant young violinist, a native of Holland, played one day for Edward VII, when he was the Prince of Wales.

"Is there anything you care more for than your Stradivarius?" asked the prince, expecting, of course, a negative reply.

The young Netherlander colored a little. "The violin is not an absorbing passion with me, your highness," she replied.

"Ah! Perhaps you have a leaning to another branch of art?" suggested the prince.

"Indeed, I have not!" the violinist said in a burst of confidence. "But, your highness, I just love to cook! I really believe I should make an excellent chef if I had the opportunity to practice."—New York Tribune.

A "Fine Old Woman."

During the evening a gentleman came to Mrs. Siddons and said, "Madam, I beg your pardon for asking so rude a question, but in consequence of a wager allow me to ask your age."

She replied, "Seventy-eight years old."

"Hang it," said he, "I have lost." And he abruptly went away.

Mrs. Siddons immediately said, "Puppy!"

"Very true," I observed, "but why did you tell him you were so old?"

She replied, "Whenever a lady of an uncertain age, as it is termed, is asked how old she is she had better add ten or more years to her age, for then the inquirer goes away saying, 'What a fine old woman!'"—"Journals of Sir George Smart."

A Curious Cipher Code.

Prisoners confined in different parts of jail often use cipher codes in communicating with one another. In the Kansas City jail some years ago the officials came across a hard one. A fellow named Turner, in for forgery, invented the puzzle. The writing was on long narrow strips of paper, on the edge of which were letters and parts of letters that apparently had no connection and from which no words could be formed. One day a deputy who was passing the cell of a prisoner saw him passing a long strip of paper around an octagon lead pencil. He took the paper away, and on it were the mysterious scrawls that had worried the keepers. But the deputy got an idea from this, and, going back to the office, he wrapped the strip around an octagon shaped lead pencil and after several trials adjusted it so that the parts of the letters fitted together and made a sentence, though the writing was very fine. The writer had adopted the simple but ingenious plan of covering the pencil with paper and had then written along one of the flat sides. On unrolling it the writing was as mystical as a cryptogram, but when put around the pencil as it was originally it could be easily understood.

Why.

There is something almost plaintive in the truly English word "why." It may be indefinitely prolonged upon the lips. "Why" is almost poetical in itself and fitly introduces the best barometer in the language:

"Why do the heathen rage and the people imagine a vain thing?"

Its uses in poetry are almost infinite, and one modern writer makes almost a line of it alone:

Why do the night winds sigh,
The sea birds wildly cry,
The summer clouds pass by,
The lilies droop and die,
The light fade from the sky?
Why—oh, why?

To most of the whys there is not a good because. The inquiring mind is puzzled to account for many things besides its own existence. Hundreds of such questions occur to us at every step, and no satisfactory reply can be expected. Life is too short. Socrates was always saying "Why," and we have all heard of the man who called Pope the "little crooked thing that asked questions."—Exchange.

The Man Who Told the Tale.

It happened on a Pullman car between New York and Chicago. Dinner having been finished, the gentlemen assembled in the smoking room to enjoy their cigars.

"During the time I was in the war," said the quiet man, "I saw a very wonderful thing in the line of surgical operations. A friend of mine was shot through the right breast, the bullet passing clear through him. The presence of mind of his companion undoubtedly saved his life. He wrapped his handkerchief around the ramrod of his gun and, pushing it through the path made by the bullet, cleared the wound of all poisonous lead. I know it is hard to believe, but, gentlemen, the man still lives to tell the tale."

"Which man?" inquired the slim passenger on the other seat quietly.

"The wounded one, of course," exclaimed the old soldier scornfully.

"Oh, I beg your pardon. I thought it might be the other."

The Mania For Shopping.

One phase of the feminine mania for shopping is illustrated in John Foster Fraser's "America at Work." Speaking of the C. O. D. method of shopping and of the way in which it appeals to the woman with the slender purse, he says:

"If she has no dollars, that does not deprive her of the pleasure of shopping. She will walk into a big store, look over a dozen gowns and try on several before deciding. Then she will get a C. O. D. card and, visiting other departments, will buy a hat, rich underwear and a parasol. She will give a fine order. When the goods are delivered at the address she mentioned, it is found there is no such person as Mrs. Walker. True, she has put the store to a lot of trouble. Yet think of the morning of womanly delight she has had in her shopping."

The Right Place.

A dignified elderly gentleman riding on a train was annoyed by a boy sitting across the aisle. The boy had just finished his breakfast and was amusing himself by laughing at the old gentleman. Presently the latter leaned over and said to the boy's mother:

"Madam, that child should be spanked."

"I know it," said she, "but I don't believe in spanking a child on a full stomach."

"Neither do I," said he. "Turn him over."

The Record in Bellefonte is a Unique One.

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ill and is looking for relief and cure, better depend on the only remedy endorsed by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve quickly—cure permanently. Bellefonté citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it:

Mrs. Emma J. Davis of E. Logan St. Bellefonte, Pa. says; I have a great deal of confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills, and have already recommended them in a published testimonial in 1897. I told how I had been relieved of kidney complaint and backache which had kept me suffering for years. Doan's Kidney Pills did this for me when other remedies had failed. Whenever I feel any symptom of my old trouble I send to F. Potts Green's drug store for a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and it never requires more than a few doses to get me right."

EDITORIAL.

Treating the Poor Squarely.

The poor man is not treated squarely nowadays. The State not only fails to get work for the unemployed, but it tries to evade any forced responsibity. Can you realize that this year—in the twentieth century—a group of citizens, following only one of the most American customs and rights were set upon by the police while parading in procession? And yet the newspapers report this as having occurred recently in Chicago. Now, is the State doing its duty? Is it helping each man to help himself? Unless it does, suicide will go on. Of course suicides are immoral and cowardly. There is nothing more contemptible than a man with a family killing himself, and then letting them shift for themselves. Yet, when a man is alone in the world, without work, and he ends his life because of the gnawing discouragement, you do not blame him so much as you do society for letting him get into that state of mind. If society believes that it has the right to force each man to his natural life, it devolves on society to give that life an opportunity to be a happy one. The State should make one of its duties the assisting of men and women in finding satisfactory and congenial work. If that was done you would find that many self-inflicted deaths would be checked.

The rural communities that have for several years past enjoyed and appreciated the advantages of free delivery of mail matter have now within their reach a most important extension of facility if they shall properly back up the effort of the Postmaster General to procure the assent of Congress to the establishment of rural delivery of parcels with a maximum w[illegible] pounds for a maximum charge of 25 cents. The organized grangers could make good and fruitful use of their organization by pushing this matter upon the attention of their representatives in Congress. In operation the delivery of parcels would be a source of revenue to the Government as well as of added convenience to small merchants in country towns and all residents on free delivery routes."

EVER since the Republican party regained control of the Government and passed a Protective Tariff law our exports of manufactured articles have been growing by leaps and bounds. We were told that the McKinley bill would destroy our foreign trade, that the cost of manufacture here, under our high scale of wages, would be so heavy that competition with foreign factories, with their lower wage scales, would be entirely out of the question. The result, however, has been just the opposite to what was predicted. Instead of falling off our exports have increased, while wage scales have been going higher and higher and largely increased numbers of American laborers have been finding continual employment in our mills and factories. There is a reason for this, and it is not difficult to find. It lies in the fact that America produces the very best quality of manufactured articles produced anywhere on earth, and the foreigner who wants the best, has become accustomed to demanding the American made article. The skilled labor employed in our factories excels that of any other country. It is paid better wages and is of a higher order of intelligence. The natural result follows; the goods produced are of better quality and are sure to win in the markets of the world.

The chief of the bureau of immigration says he considers the demands for farm labor as a sure sign of the substantial prosperity of the country. The farmers are asking for help they cannot get. Dispatches from Washington say that the Bureau of immigration is swamped with requests from farmers that immigrants shall be sent to them. The letters come from every state in the union, but the most of them from the south. The problem of providing for the thousands of unemployed in the cities would be much easier of solution, if men and women out of work could be moved to the country where they would be healthier and happier and in every way better off.

GOOD times will return again presently. The situation is vastly different now to what it was fifteen years ago. Then the farmer was suffering with the mechanic and laborer. Now he is prospering. He has been getting high prices for his products and has reached as near to the state of happiness and content as the average farmer ever gets. No the banks in any state of distress. The record they have made during the last few months is a remarkable one and very much to the credit of the prudent business men who are managing them. If only we could learn prudence by these periodical misfortunes and relegate the spirit of greed to the rear there would be fewer financial and industrial panics.

THE Pennsylvania State Brewers association is now using the press to disseminate "The truth concerning brewing and br[illegible]ers We all know the truth concerning the brew, and the only fighting chance the brewers have is that they have the money.

After all, the issue is that President Roosevelt thinks the United States ought to control the great corporations. His opponents think the great corporations ought to control the United States, and are angry because they cannot control even the President

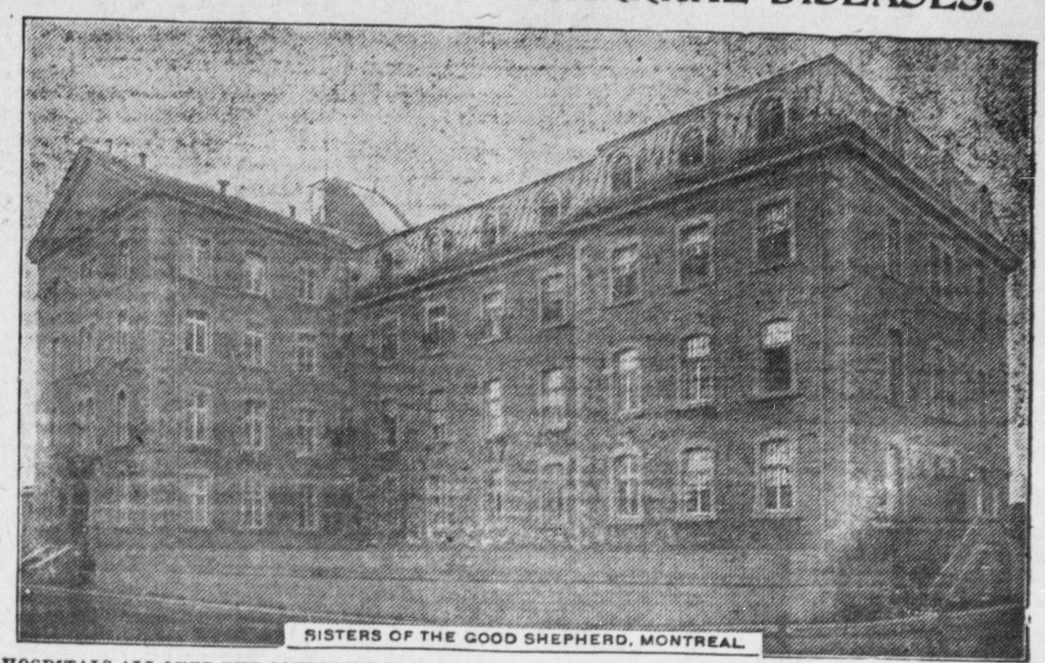
PROMINENT HOSPITALS SAY

PE-RU-NA IS EFFICIENT

IN RELIEVING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES.



SISTERS OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD, MONTREAL

HOSPITALS ALL OVER THE CONTINENT FIND PE-RU-NA VALUABLE IN TREATING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES

CATARRH of the respiratory organs is a common ailment in Canada for at least two-thirds of the year.

This condition is no doubt caused by the long, severe winters experienced in this part of the continent.

Therefore, when Peruna was discovered by Canadian people to be a reliable remedy for these catarrhal diseases, it at once became a popular medicine, not only among individuals and in families, but in the great hospitals, where it was used as a preventative and relief in hundreds of cases.

These institutions do not hesitate to give their endorsement of the remedy which has been so helpful in the treatment of their poor and sick.

Among these institutions is that of the Sisters of Good Shepherd, who gave the following endorsement:

The Peruna Company,
Columbus, Ohio,

Having used Peruna for the past few months, for our sick and poor, we are happy to say that it has given us great satisfaction.

The Sisters of the Good Shepherd,
August 20, 1903.
Montreal.

After a continued use of the remedy, this institution has found no reason to change its good opinion of the remedy and expresses its satisfaction in the following terms:

Montreal, Nov. 7, 1903.

We found Peruna a relief in several cases.

We can say it is a good tonic and we are very thankful.

Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

When catarrh once fastens itself upon the system it becomes an obstinate disease to eradicate.

A systemic remedy—one that reaches every internal organ of the body—is an absolute necessity.

Peruna is just such a remedy. It searches out the cause of the disease, healing and strengthening the mucous membranes, and thus giving Nature an opportunity to perform her part of the restorative process.

One of the many hospitals which have found Peruna of value in treating old and obstinate cases of catarrh is the Hospital St. John, who write, as follows:

"We are happy to tell you that your Peruna has given us satisfaction. Three patients have tried it, one 68 years old, Renoui Dupuis, afflicted with catarrh, is much relieved, more than he has been for a number of years.

"A young girl, 15 years old, had an obstinate cough, which half a bottle of Peruna caused to disappear.

"As to myself, two bottles have convinced me that Peruna is magnificent as a tonic.

"Before the treatment I could not walk for a quarter of an hour without experiencing much fatigue. Now I can walk a mile easily.

"Through these three cases we desire to make known to the public the efficiency of your remedy."

Hospital St. John, of St. Johns,
Province of Quebec.

A later letter received from the same institution reads as follows:

"Three weeks ago I wrote to tell you how satisfactory we found Peruna. We recommend it highly for colds, coughs, catarrh and neuralgia.

"I have used it myself as a tonic with the best results, taken as directed, half a teaspoonful every half hour."

Mrs. Etta Booker, Dundurn, Sask. N. W. T., Canada, writes:

"I suffered with pelvic catarrh until I wrote to Dr. Hartman, and after taking treatment as he advised, I can say I am now cured of this most trying affliction, for which I am truly thankful. I think Peruna the best medicine for catarrh. I never felt better in my life than I do at present."

Peruna not only promptly relieves coughs and colds in their first stages, but is equally prompt and efficient for catarrhal diseases in the chronic stage.

Of course, it is only reasonable to suppose that a great deal less medicine will be necessary to cure a slight attack of catarrh than would be required to relieve the ailment after it had been allowed to become chronic.

Who'll Stand With "Jim?"

I saw and heard three young men, as they stopped at the door of a dram-shop in the city of Williamsport, Pa. One of them said "Jim, come in with us and take a drink." Jim quickly replied, "No, John, I'll not go in there; I'll wait for you out here." Then the other companion, still more urgent, taking him by the coat collar to force him along, said, "Come, Jim, come in; it won't hurt you to take one drink." Jim again resisted and said decidedly, "No, boys, no, I've made up mind never to take the first intoxicating drink." Jim stood there alone, bravely holding the good ground he had taken, while his two companions went into the saloon to take their drinks. I cheered and encouraged Jim all I could and only regret that I did not ask for his full name and post office address. As sure as he is living, Jim will be found in some honorable, useful and payable position. Such young men are always in demand. Who'll Stand With Jim?

Election day proved to be very exciting here. The que tion of lighting the streets of the borough is again being agitated and promises to be a problem of considerable interest to the incoming council. The gasoline lights that were installed some time ago have not been lit since the unfortunate death of Russell Solt and it is doubtful if they will again be brought into use. The borough council has granted W. H. Long the right to erect poles and wires for furnishing the business places and residents with electric light, but there is no assurance of the boro streets being lighted. This places the council in a predictment as many advocate the disposal of the gasoline lights and accept the bid of Mr. Long for lighting the streets with electric lights. Others claim that this would be too expensive and the gasoline lights should again be brought into use. The council so far has been unable to get anyone to attend to the gasoline lights and are up against it.

A glance through our weekly exchanges show that there is no lack of material for the various offices to be filled this year. Nor is there any modesty among the patriots who desire to serve the dear people.

Fire at Renovo.

Renovo Feb. 14.—At 12:30 o'clock this morning fire broke out in the rear of Billings and Company's wareroom and soon communicated with the Billings building. It is the most disastrous fire that this borough has ever experienced and many buildings on the principal street are in the path of the flames.

On account of an insufficient water supply the local fire department was hampered from the start, and the flames spread with tremendous rapidity. Within an hour of the time the fire was discovered four business houses were in flames.

Bachman & Co's store, the Billings furniture store, the John Smith and Dwyer buildings with all their contents were in flames. These buildings join one another and there is no telling where the destruction will end as the local fire department is unable to cope with the onraging flames.

Lock Haven was appealed to for help but it was impossible for them to get here before 3 o'clock. Up to this hour at least $30,000 worth of buildings and merchandise has been destroyed. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Cast Thy Bread Upon the Waters.

Cast thy bread upon the waters,
Ye who have but scant supply,
Angels' eyes will watch above it--
You shall find it by and by;
He who in His righteous balance,
Doth each human action weigh:
Will your sacrifice remember,
Will your loving deeds repay.

Cast thy bread upon the waters,
Poor and weary worn with care—
Often sitting in the shadow
Have you not a crumb to spare;
Can you not to those around you,
Sing some little song of hope,
As you look with longing vision,
Thro' faith's mighty telescope?

Cast they bread upon the waters,
Ye who have abundant store;
It may float on many a billow,
It may strand on many a shore.
You may think it lost forever,
But as sure as God is true;
In this life or in the other,
It will yet return to you.

Cast thy bread upon the waters,
Far and wide your treasures strew;
Scatter it with willing fingers,
Laugh for joy to see it go.
For if you'd closely keep it,
It will only drag you down;
If you love it more than Jesus,
It will keep you from your Crown.

Cast thy bread upon the waters,
Waft it on with praying breath,
In some distant, doubtful moment,
It may save a soul from death.
When you sleep in solemn silence,
Neath the morn and evening dew,
Strange hands, which you have strengthened,
May strew lilies over you.

Want W. P Shriner as Pastor.

In speaking of the removal of Dr. H. R. Bender from the Trinity Methodist church at Lock Haven the Express comments as follows:

A committee was appointed by Trinity church to procure a new pastor. There have been various rumors as to the successor of Dr. Bender at Trinity, but the question has not yet been settled. It is altogether probable, however, that Rev. Dr. W, P. Shriner, who has been located at Carlisle for five years, will take Dr. Bender's place. Dr. Shriner is also an able preacher, as well as popular pastor. He was located Bellefonte for several years and went from that place to Carlisle. He is about 42 years old. has a wife and three daughters, and if he is transferred to Trinity church will no doubt please the congregation, for he is considered among the best preachers in the Central Pennsylvania conference.

The death of a brother of Dr. Bender a few weeks ago has made it advisible for him to make a change in his pastorate that he might be nearer his sisters in Chambersburg.

ANNUAL STATEMENT.

Following the custom of Centre County papers the Bellefonte Republican have had their mailing list reset and the date to which your subsciption is paid will be found opposite your name on the label. We believe this will be a great convenience to our subscribers enabling them to see at a glance just when they are paid to. Quite a number of our readers are in arrears and we know this would not be the case had they received statements of their accounts.

The expenses of running a newspaper have increased greatly during the last year. White paper alone costs 50 per cent more than it did one year ago. Other expenses have increased accordingly. At this time of year all business houses make an effort to collect bills so as to meet their obligations promptly and start the new year square. We hope during the month of January to send a statement to every subscriber in arrears, but you don't need to wait for this. Send in your money and make your label read '08 or '09.

Remember the subscription price is $1.50 per year but if paid in advance it is $1.00

THE PUBLISHER

The healthy old man wears his gray hairs like a silver crown. What if he be threescore and ten if there is still fire in his eye, firmness in his step, command in his voice and wisdom in his council? He commands love and reverence. Yet how few wear the mantle of age with dignity. Dim eyed, querulous of speech halting in step, childish in mind, they "sag superfluous on the stage" dragging out the lag end of life in a simple existence. The secret of a healthy old age is a healthy middle age. The man who takes care of his stomach, who keeps his body properly nourished, will find that the body does not fail him in old age. The great value of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery lies in the preservation of the working power of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. From this center is distributed the nourishment of the whole body, the salt for the blood, the lime for the bones, phosphates for the brain and nerves. A sound stomach means a sound man. A man who keeps his stomach sound by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" will wear the crown of gray hairs as befits a monarch, with diginity and ease.

When C. M. Parrish the enterprising druggist, first offered a 50 cent package of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half price, and guaranteed to return the money if it did not cure, he thought it probable from his experience with other medicines for these diseases, that he would have a good many packages returned. Still though he has sold hundreds of bottles, not one has been brought back. This is so surprising that he has taken the contract to introduce Dr. Howard's specific in at least half the homes in Bellefonte and to do that he will continue his special half price introductory offer.

C M. Parrish wants every person in Bellefonte who has constipation, dyspepsia, headaches, or liver trouble to come to his store or send him 25 cents by mail and get 60 doses of the best medicine ever made at half the regular price with his personal guarantee to refund the money, if it does not cure.

To those suffering with dizziness, headache, poor digestion, constipation and straining, Dr. Howard's specific offers quick relief. It is an invaluable boon to all who feel uncomfortable after eating, and is to-day the popular dinner pill in all the large cities.

—No flower could at all compare,
With this pretty lass so young and fair;
Her step is light, her heart is free,
Since taking Rocky Mountain Tea.—

Does Not Color Hair

Ayer's Hair Vigor, as now made from our new improved formula, does not stain or color the hair even to the slightest degree. Gray hair, white hair, blonde hair is not made a shade darker. But it certainly does stop falling hair. No question about that.

Does not change the color of the hair.

Ayer's — Formula with each bottle. Show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, then do as he says

Indeed, we believe it will stop every case of falling hair unless there is some very unusual complication, something greatly affecting the general health. Then you should consult your physician. Also ask him about the new Ayer's Hair Vigor.

IMPROVING STOCK.

The Inevitable Process For Cattlemen and Horsemen.

By J. S. COTTON.

Improvement of the class of stock using the grazing lands is becoming constantly more important. The man who is running his stock in inclosed areas or contemplates so doing in the future will find it necessary if he is to be successful to carry that class of stock that will net him the greatest returns. This statement holds equally true for the outside range. In fact, there are only two methods whereby the man who expects to continue running his stock on the public domain can meet the existing conditions successfully. One is the raising of sufficient feed to carry his stock through the winter safely; the other, to run a grade of stock that shall make the largest possible returns in the shortest time.

STALLION ON THE RANGE.
[Used in improving a herd in North Dakota.]

Not only must these cattle mature early, but they must be of a quality that will dress a good percentage of beef. This means that the cattleman will need to raise high grade cows and supply the very best bulls he can secure. If pure bred so much the better. In many instances the cattleman will need to grow cattle for the eastern feed yards. In producing such cattle many of these men will find it necessary to improve their herds greatly, for quality and not quantity is what the eastern feeder wants.

What has been said of cattle holds equally true of horses. Today there is almost no place for the small horse or "cayuse," while good animals are in demand. That one can afford to raise good horses on the range has been demonstrated by a stockman living in western North Dakota. During a period of low prices for range horses this man bought a high priced stallion. With this animal and nine range mares of average size and quality as a nucleus he built up a fine herd. When the stallion died he was replaced with two registered Percherons, which continued to build up the herd until it was one of the finest herds of range horses in the United States. One of these stallions is shown in the figure.

When this man got his first horse his neighbors believed that he had made a serious mistake in buying so expensive an animal. For several years while he was building up his herd, at which time horses were of almost no value, he was considerably in debt. As his stock began to improve and the price of horses increased he began to realize well from this herd, and during the last two years he has sold geldings in carload lots at $125 a head unbroken. In the summer of 1906 he sold his entire herd, 227 head, at $55 a head straight for all branded stock, an unusually high price for range horses. There were two mares of his own raising in the herd for which the buyers refused $550 unbroken. This man estimates that his first stallion made for him many times what he paid for it.

For Winter Sport.

Every country boy can get a whole lot of fun out of a "go devil" coaster. The illustration shows how it is made. A barrel stave, a piece of 2 by 4 and a piece of scrap lumber are all the material required. And here is also a method of connecting bobsleds which will cause the hind one to follow the track of the front bob on all turns.—National Stockman.

An Unmentioned Ancestor.

Mr. B. is very proud of his ancient lineage and never lets slip an opportunity to boast of it. At a dinner where he had been unusually rampant on this subject a fellow guest quieted him by remarking:

"If you climb much farther up your family tree you will come face to face with the monkey."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Three Queer Things.

The curious things which occur in the world on a given day would no doubt if collected excite the wonder of the most incredulous. Yet in a single newspaper there was recently found an account of a woman who was guilty of so infamous a proceeding as going to sleep at a shop while the assistant was in the act of showing her some dress stuffs, accompanying the exhibition with the usual eloquence of these individuals.

The second related the acuteness of two tramps who conceived the idea of going to a fancy dress ball in their ordinary attire. As may be imagined, they devoted the best part of their time to a serious inroad on the resources of the supper room, much to the amusement of the whole party, who naturally thought they were guests who had been invited to the entertainment and who, having made themselves up with exceptional skill for their assumed parts, were carrying out the idea of the characters they represented for the purpose of the jest.

The third story was that of an absentminded young woman who was playing with a pair of scissors and proceeded to trim off her eyebrows quite unconscious of what she was doing.—Pearson's Weekly.

Benton and Barton.

In the "Thirty Years In the United States Senate," by Thomas Hart Benton, Missouri's famous United States senator, there is scant mention of Benton's colleague from Missouri, David Barton. The only place in which his name occurs is where Senator Benton gives the roll call of the senate, and Barton's name of course is therein contained. Benton undertook to punish Barton by ignoring him and thus relegate the first United States senator from Missouri to oblivion. Barton had brought about Benton's election to the senate. Barton was first named by the legislature, and there was a long contention as to the second senatorship. Finally Barton's friendship for Benton brought about Benton's election. Later the two quarreled over the appointment of an Indian agent in the far west and drifted further and further apart. Finally the relations between the two senators became such that they scarcely spoke to one another when they met.—Kansas City Star.

The Injured One.

A gentleman owning a sugar estate in Demerara went out to visit it for the first time. The day after his arrival he stood watching the punts bringing the cane home. A young negro boy who was driving the mules, wishing to increase the speed of them, struck one of them with his whip. The mule promptly responded by launching out with his heels and dealt the boy a kick on the head which stretched him on the ground, where he lay rubbing his woolly pate on the spot where the kick had been received.

"Is he hurt? Is he hurt?" cried the planter in alarm. A full grown negro, hearing the expressions of concern, sprang forward hastily and, raising the mule's heels, shouted out:

"No, boss! That mule him walk tendah fo' a day or two, but him no hurt!"—Chambers' Journal.

The First Reporter.

The modern reporter harks back to the reign of Queen Anne and to the unknown scribe who attempted to tell the public the secrets of her parliament. He had a hard time of it, for parliament wished to keep its secrets to itself. In 1728 an order was passed "that it is an indignity to and a breach of the privilege of this house for any person to presume to give in written or printed newspapers any account or minute of the debates or proceedings; that upon discovery of the authors, printers or publishers of any such newspapers this house will proceed against the offenders with the utmost severity." During the famous Wilkes case in 1772 the reporters won the victory which they have since held without dispute.—New York American.

When the Lights Went Out.

Almost every speaker has had the experience of the house becoming totally dark because of the failure of the electric lights. Here is such an experience by one lecturer. It was in Pittsburg; the audience was a Hebrew society. When the lights went out, the lecturer waited a moment and then said, "We will proceed anyway, for I still have the Israel-lites." It was the hit of the evening.—Lyceumite and Talent.

A Great Secret.

At some of the English country fairs a "great secret" is sold in sealed envelopes at twopence apiece. Here is the secret: "Never buy an article before examining it. If you had known this before, you would not have paid twopence for this worthless envelope when you could get more than two dozen good ones for the same price."

A Thackeray Slip.

Thackeray asked Lowell to point out candidly any error of Queen Anne English in the novel "Henry Esmond." Lowell asked if people used at that time the phrase "different to."

"Hang it all!" cried Thackeray. "No, of course they didn't."

Thoughtful.

Singleton—Your wife appears to be an unusually thoughtful woman. Wedderly—That's what she is. Why, you couldn't imagine half the things she thinks when I am detained downtown late.

An Unsecured Loan.

Though pawnbrokers are not supposed to have any friends, only customers, there is a story that is told in New York that shows that they sometimes stretch their rules—if the right man comes along. A certain racing man had been having a very hard streak of luck. If there were twenty-one horses in the race, his choice would never be better than No. 20. Finally his money was all gone; also all of his negotiable property. When he had spent his last dollar for breakfast, he turned into the pawnshop where all his valuables were being cared for, and they amounted to considerable.

"I'd like to have $500 on this," he said to the proprietor, laying down an ordinary lead pencil on the counter.

Without a change of countenance, the pawnbroker made out a ticket and passed the money over the counter.

Right there the racing man's fortunes seemed to change. Every one of his selections proved an easy winner, and, as he pushed his luck, he was able at the end of the week to redeem his pencil and all his other valuables.—New York Globe.

Foresight and Delicatessen.

In Chicago is a woman who combines the functions of caterer and trance medium, serving her customers with refreshment psychical or physical, according to their wishes.

Either she or the sign painter whom she employed must be a humorist, for her sign reads thus:

"Madame Blank, caterer and trance medium. Groceries and Previsions."

Guaranteed Ghosts.

"No intelligent person pays any attention to ghosts," said the dogmatic person.

"Perhaps not," answered Miss Cayenne, "unless the ghost has been able to secure an introduction from some psychic research society."—Washington Star.

The Bohemian.

"Ah, once a bohemian always a bohemian!" exclaimed the unscissored poet. "A bohemian never changes."

"No, not even his collar," replied the practical man, who had met a few bohemians.—Chicago News.

Locating the Blame.

Father—Why, when I was your age I didn't have as much money in a month as you spend in a day. Son—Well, pa, don't scold me about it. Why don't you go for grandfather?

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

HEAP BLAME ON HUSTON

Purpose of Defense in Capitol Case is Made Plain

WITNESSES ARE MANY

Among These is Former Governor Pennypacker who is Looked Upon as Important

DEFENDANTS MAY BE CALLED

Harrisburg, Pa., February 13.—That the blame for the alleged abuses in the contracts for the furnishing of the new capitol will be shifted from Contractor Sanderson and the three former state officers now on trial in the Dauphin county court for conspiracy to Architect Huston is apparent from the opening arguments of counsel for the defense to the jury.

Following the refusal of Judge Kunkel to make an order to give binding instructions to the jury to acquit all of the four defendants the lawyers for the defense bagan their opening arguments, which will be continued today when Mr. Bergner will speak for former Superintendent Shumaker and Mr. Schaffer for former State Treasurer Mathews.

Arguments were made by Mr. Rothermel for Contractor Sanderson, and by Mr. Gilbert for former Auditor General Snyder. They contended that as agent of the board of grounds and buildings the defendants relied on Huston as to the correctness of the bills of the contractors and that it was his duty to certify to the quality and quantity of all the furnishings before the bills were paid.

Former Governor Pennypacker, who was president of the board at the time of the award of the Sanderson contract and during the furnishing of the capital, will be one of the most important witnesses for the defense. Snyder and Mathues will also testify in their own behalf and t is probable the other two defendants will be called to the witness stand.

Huston is still here under subpoena by the defense, but it is doubtful if he will be called as a witness. His lawyers were in court for the first time for ten days, but took no part in the proceedings. The defense has subpoenaed a large number of witnesses and does not expect to close its case before Saturday.

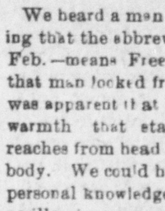
CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

F. E. B.

We heard a man say the other morning that the abbreviation for February—Feb.—means Freeze every body, and that man looked frozen in his ulster. I was apparent that he needed the kind of warmth that stays, the warmth that reaches from head to foot, all over the body. We could have told him from personal knowledge that Hood's Sarsaparilla gives permanent warmth, it invigorates the blood and speeds it along through artery and vein, and really fits men and women, boys and girls, to enjoy cold weather and resist the attacks of disease. It gives the right kind of warmth, stimulates and strengthens at the same time, and all its benefits are lasting. There may be a suggestion in this for you.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.



It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Assisting the Miracle.

By JOHN HARTY.

Copyrighted, 1908, by P. C. Eastment.

Jessie thrilled at the sight of the tall, grave man slowly descending the steps to the boat landing. He was a governor, the governor of her own state, and in his hands he held the power of life and death—the life or death of the man she had promised to marry and who now lay in prison awaiting execution for the murder of a friend.

He smiled brightly upon her as he came upon the float. "I see that it is not worms alone the early bird acquires," he said as he raised his hat. "Apparently boats as well come under that classification."

"Won't you come with me?" she invited. "I am going out alone and shall be only too glad to have you come along."

The governor's face beamed with delight.

"I was afraid that I was to lose my sport," he said as he stepped into the skiff. "I have only a week, and—well, you are a fisherman yourself, it seems."

His eyes fell upon the tackle neatly arranged in the stern, and Jessie nodded her verification. Fishing had done much to help her over the days that had gone by since sentence was passed on Tim Darlington. She swept her tackle to one side, and the governor took his seat after she had declined to let him row.

"It seems that I ought to know you," he said uncertainly as her strong, even strokes carried them rapidly through the water. "Have I not seen you somewhere?"

"At the executive mansion," she answered, coloring. "I came to plead for Tim Darlington."

"Ah, yes," he answered; "I knew that I had seen you before. I seldom forget a face, though sometimes I cannot exactly place it. It was a very unfortunate case. I truly regretted that I could not bring back the roses to your face by freeing your fiance, the evidence was so strongly against him."

"I SHALL SIGN YOUR FIANCE'S RELEASE AS SOON AS I RETURN."

"Purely circumstantial," contended Jessie bravely. "Tim and Jack Sutton were out in a boat, and Jack went overboard. Tim could not save him because he could not swim. The Suttons declared that it was murder and pressed the case."

"But they proved motive," reminded the governor. "It seems that young Sutton had been the dishonest means of losing some of Darlington's savings in a deal."

"But that was all patched up," cried Jessie. "Jack was to have paid back the money in installments. He confessed to Tim that he had spent it instead of investing it, but they had made friends again."

The governor shook his head. He had stern ideas on the abuse of the pardoning power. To him the case seemed clear.

"I am sorry," he said gently, "but let us not discuss the matter. I am firmly convinced that with a flat bottomed boat the man could not have fallen overboard. That is the weak point in the defense—the statement that the man fell out of the boat while changing places. Why, I have changed places in a boat hundreds of times and never lost my balance!"

"I didn't mean to annoy you," cried Jessie penitently. "You are down here for a rest, not to be bothered with affairs of state."

"You do not annoy me," he assured. "I only wish I could be convinced that the defense was accurate. If you could argue a new point I would gladly listen."

"I can only tell you how it happened," said Jessie dolefully. "There is no new point. But here is the best place to fish," she added as she moved lightly to the bow and threw over the anchor. "I found this place last week. It's the best on the lake."

The governor hurriedly threw out his hook, and presently the two were busily engaged in hauling in fish. The sport was excellent, and the tired lines about the governor's mouth relaxed as he pulled in the finny beauties.

Jessie was having even better luck, and at last the governor straightened up, with a sigh of regret. "I am afraid we shall have to stop," he said, with a kindly smile, "unless we wish to depopulate the lake at one session. I am under deep obligation to you, Miss Grandin. It is the best morning's sport I have had since I came."

"I'm glad there were no more boats," said Jessie simply. "No one else appears to have found this hole."

The governor looked with admiration at the catch and then half rose to his feet.

"You must let me row back," he insisted. "You are tired with your fishing. Sit here in the stern."

Cautiously they exchanged places, and the governor went into the bow to raise the anchor. He had brought the hook inboard and rose to a crouching position to regain the rowing seat when his knees bent under him, and the next moment he was floundering in the water. Like a flash Jessie had caught up the oars and was rowing toward him. It was the work of a moment for him to climb aboard over the bow again.

"You had better row," suggested Jessie. "That will keep you from taking cold."

The governor took the oars, and the light boat shot over the water. For a time neither spoke; then the man looked up.

"Do you know," he said, with an odd expression on his face, "I feel as though this is a message. I have always believed it to be impossible for a man to fall overboard if he took care. I shall sign your fiance's release as soon as I return."

In the stern Jessie was sobbing out her thanks, and it was not until they came in sight of the landing that she recovered her self possession. None of the other parties had seen the accident, and the governor, much to his relief, was able to slip into the hotel without attracting attention.

Nothing more was said regarding the matter, but Jessie's heart sang as she saw the governor take his departure and realized that one of his first official acts would be the signing of the pardon for Tim.

But it was two weeks before the machinery of the law at last released its grip on the person of Tim Darlington and he walked out of the death house to freedom. He had arranged to come straight to Jessie, and they were floating over the same fishing pool where the governor had taken his plunge.

"It seems like a miracle that the governor should have gone overboard just after you had brought my case freshly to his mind," said Tim as he drew in a fish.

"It wasn't exactly a miracle," confessed Jessie. "I remembered what he said about that being the only point. When I saw him standing there in the bow I rocked the boat just a tiny bit. It wasn't really wrong, was it?"

"Do you expect me to say 'Yes' to that?" demanded Tim, with a laugh as he bent to kiss the happy face. "I should call it assisting the miracle."

Too Observant.

Much is said in these days about the importance of training the young to habits of observation. It is well to keep one's eyes open, but as there are two sides to every shield, so there are times when it is not a man's first duty to see everything that is going on.

A farmer hired a man, the story goes, and put him into his field to work. After awhile the farmer came along and accosted the new hand:

"Did you see a carriage go down the road awhile ago?"

"Yes, I did. One of the hosses was a gray hoss, and the other was a roan and lame in his hoff leg."

"I though I heard some men shooting over there on the edge of the woods."

"Yes; one of them was Colonel Cotton; he was the tall one. The second one was Major Peters, and the third one was Tom McSniffer. Colonel Cotton had one of them newfangled breechloadin' guns what breaks in two."

"Did you see those wild pigeons fly over just now?"

"See 'em! Rather. There was nineteen of them. They lit in that old cornfield down yonder."

"Well, you see too much for a man that is hired by the day. Here's your wages. When I want a man to keep watch of what is going on I'll send for you."—Pearson's Weekly.

How They Found Out.

When the Lawtons had lived in Willow Park about a month they were invited to a succession of little dinners at the houses of their new neighbors. Mr. Lawton was on a dyspeptic's diet, and Mrs. Lawton was endeavoring to reduce her weight. "I suppose we shall have to eat all sorts of things we don't wish or else seem rude," said Mrs. Lawton mournfully as they set out for the first dinner.

To their growing surprise, the bills of fare placed before them at each dinner, although not remarkably varied, were all composed of such dishes as they could both enjoy.

"I don't see how you all hit on just the right things when Mr. Lawton and I really are such difficult guests," said Mrs. Lawton in a burst of confidence one afternoon when the neighbors were taking tea with her.

The ladies looked at each other, and then one of them spoke.

"You know Mary Sloan, who comes to wash for you Tuesday mornings?" she said. "Well, I have her Mondays, and Mrs. Green has her Wednesdays, and she irons for Mrs. Porter Thursdays and scrubs for Miss Homer Fridays, so you see"—

Her voice trailed off into silence, but Mrs. Lawton no longer wondered. She "saw."

An Easy Way Out of Trouble.

"We simply can't go on as we have been going," he declared. "We are spending more than I'm making. You surely must be able to understand that such a state of affairs can't last long."

"Then, dear," she soothingly replied, "why don't you make more?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Chicago, Ills.

Gentlemen:—
In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. Some physicians told me it was Dyspepsia, some Consumption of the Lungs, others said consumption of the Bowels. One physician said I would not live until Spring, and for four long years I existed on a little boiled milk, soda biscuits, doctors' prescriptions and Dyspepsia remedies that flooded the market. I could not digest anything I ate, and in the Spring 1905 I picked up one of your Almanacs as a poor emaciated Dyspepsia wreck will grasp at anything, and that Almanac happened to be my life saver. I bought a fifty cent bottle of KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE and the benefit I received from that bottle ALL THE GOLD IN GEORGIA COULD NOT BUY. I kept on taking it and in two months I went back to my work, as a machinist, and in three months I was well and hearty. I still use a little occasionally as I find it a fine blood purifier and a good tonic.

May you live long and prosper.
Yours very truly,
C. N. CORNELL.

To Block Hasty Marriage.

Planning to impress them with the seriousness of the marriage contract, check young persons in making hasty and rash promises to wed and to contract, Bishop Eugene Garvey has directed the clergy of the Altoona diocese to instruct their congregations regarding the new marriage rules of the Catholic church before Easter Sunday, when the rules become effective.

The bishop will send to every pastor a printed copy of the rules, which will be the subject of many discourses in Catholic churches during the Lenten season.

One of the provisions relative to the promise to marry, or so-called engagement. In the future the church will recognize an engagement only when it has been made in writtten form, signed and witnessed by the contracting parties, the priest in that parish or two reliable witnesses.

As to the question of domicile, one of the contracting parties must have lived in the parish where the marriage is to occur for at least one month. The priest in whose parish the girl has lived should perform the ceremony, if the parties are away from their homes, a dispensation may be obtained for marriage by another priest.

Provision is made for marriage without the service of a priest under exceptional circumstances. It is permissable when there is immediate danger of death and a priest is not at hand, or in isolated communities where the priest has been too ill for thirty days to perform the ceremony. The contracting parties may then be married by declaring themselves man and wife before two witnesses.

The Possession of Eagles.

Every person who has read anything about the case will sympathise with the New Jersey man who was fined twenty dollars by a Newark judge for having in his possession a live eagle which some kind-hearted but thoughtless friend sent from some other State. It has been referred to as one more case in which "Jersey justice" has been applied with its severity.

It cannot be denied that the punishment was severe, and that the offender was in a way made an example of for breaking a law by exhibiting an eagle in his shop window—for that is the construction that has been applied to the case, when as a matter of fact his exhibiting the bird had no further bearing on the case than to attract the attention of the warden who prosecuted him. He had the bird in possession, and the game laws of New Jersey forbid this.

That wise provision which excuses no man for ignorance of the law works hardships at times, as it did in this case, but it saves not a few persons from committing offenses unwittingly. Judges are empowered to be lenient when it is shown that the imposition of a penalty will not bear out the spirit of the law.

It is assumed that the man who shipped the live eagle did so in ignorance of the peculiar position he was placing his friend in; for the latter had no resource but to refuse to receive the eagle, thus putting the forwarding agent in an equally unfortunate position, and eventually giving his friend to understand that what he had intended as a prized gift was not wanted.

The forwarding company which first accepted the shipment was at fault, as its first duty was to ascertain whether or not the eagle could be delivered law fully.

May Go Back to Canals.

There are evidences on all sides that there is a growing tendency to go back to the use of canals throughout the state that had for some years been little used for the transportation of freight. As an illustration of this the Pittston Gazette says: "The Lehigh Coal and Navigation company has awarded contracts for the construction of fifty barges to be used in canal transportation of coal from Mauch Chunk to Philadelphia. The coal company has begun the construction of ten others along the line of the canal. The contracts actually call for 100 barges each with a capacity of 100 tons. As quickly as possible the company intends to install electric power, which will enable the fleet now under way to transport to Philadelphia from Mauch Chunk 10,000 tons of coal in less than a day's time. This is in line with the agitation for the development of inland waterways. The mule may be a back number, so far as motive power is concerned, but electricity will take its place and the canal will survive for many years to come."

They Came to Blows.

Tuesday eve as the writer was sitting in this office he was disturbed by some very loud ephithetical language and upon going to the window witnessed a very "touching" scene, it proved to be several colored men who were trying to settle a dispute a la fisticuff and one of them was touched till he landed in the gutter. As soon as he could get on his feet they went at it again. Several others came to separate them and this apparently made too much of a bunch as they paired off and had two sets going at once. Officer Jodon arrived at an opportune time and soon had them parted. One of the men refused to obey the requests of the officers to disperse and when compelled to use force a number of the colored men standing by interfered. But the crowd that had assembled would not allow a bunch of the colored men to defy the cop and they promptly pulled them off. Officer Jodon then proceeded to the lock up with his prisoner unmolested.

Death of William Young.

William Young, a resident of Curtin township, died at the home of his son Ellis, Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Death was due to infirmities of old age. Mr. Young was born in Columbia County 93 years ago to the very day, Sunday being the anniversary of his birth. While he was yet a boy his parents moved to Hublersburg, this county, and later removed to Curtin township, where he has since resided and lived a life of usefulness. He took as his life partner Miss Divany Watkins and to them was born a large family of children. Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock in the Mann school house in Curtin township and interment was made in the Lucas cemetery.

Mine Work Resuming.

Advices from Indiana county state that operations in at least three mining towns where work has been running on short time for several weeks will be resumed this week. Orders have been issued to miners at Lucerne, Coral and Josephine on the Indiana branch, to return to work, and train crews have been busy placing cars on the sidings. Many of the private mines in that vicinity are being worked full time and there are indications of a complete revival of business conditions in the industrial towns of the county.
